BBC BIBLE BAPTIST CHURCH

Weekly Prayer Focus – August 1, 2021

Dave and Julie Eberhard

Serving with Wycliffe
Home Based in Wilmore, Kentucky

A Papua New Guinean magistrate said, “We need to use God’s Word in our own language. Then God’s talk will bring peace with the family, peace between clans, peace in the nation.”

Many are still waiting for the life transformation that happens when experiencing God’s Word in their own heart languages. God loves each one of these people and desires to reveal Himself to them. And that’s why Wycliffe is committed to seeing a Bible translation program started for every one of these languages that need one by the year 2025.

Enter Dave and Julie Eberhard. Dave and Julie originally served among the Mamainde people of west-central Brazil as translators, from 1989 to 2008. They then moved to Asia where Julie taught math to missionary children at Grace International School in Chiang Mai, Thailand, while Dave taught linguistics at Payap University (Thailand) to minority students from all over Southeast Asia.

Dave's role is General Editor of the Ethnologue, the world's largest database of languages. SIL provides this comprehensive database as a service to mission agencies, governments, local communities, and universities. He will also be the global coordinator for Language Development training among endangered language communities, serving in the Americas and Asia. Julie is a high school math teacher.
